- In the poem The Trees, where do the trees start to move from?
 - A. The forest B. The veranda
 - C. Inside the house D. The fields (C)
- Explanation: The poet mentions that the trees inside the house are moving out into the forest, symbolizing their desire for freedom and connection to nature.
- 2. According to the poet, which of the following cannot happen in a treeless forest?
 - A. Birds sit on branches
 - B. The sun reflects brightly C. Insects hide
 - D. Shadows are cast (A)
- Explanation: The poet highlights that a treeless forest is lifeless, as there are no trees for birds to perch on, showing the importance of nature.
- 3. What does the poet mean by the phrase "sun bury its feet in shadow"?
 - A. The sun creates deep darkness
 - B. The sun hides behind clouds
 - C. The sun's rays are blocked by trees
 - D. The sun descends into the ocean (C)
- Explanation: The poet uses metaphorical language to depict how the presence of trees creates shadowed areas, illustrating the vibrancy of nature.
- 4. How does the poet describe the branches of the trees as they struggle to move out?
 - A. Like birds flapping their wings
 - B. Like a ship in a storm
 - C. Like newly discharged patients
 - D. Like trees growing rapidly (C)
